Before the Revolution, the Koryaks did not have any writing. They had some beginnings of pictographic writing, but it was used on a very limited scale. In 1932, the first Koryak primer was published, based on the Latin alphabet adopted at the time. Koryak literary language was established on the basis of the Chavchuven dialect. In 1937, a new Koryak alphabet was developed on the basis of Russian letters.

Textbooks for elementary schools are published in Koryak, as are political and literary works. The books published in Koryak include the works of Koryak writers. In addition to the okrug newspaper, Koryakskiy Kommunist, many rayon papers are published in the Koryak National Okrug. [214]

Cultural work among the Koryaks is conducted by the village clubs, reading huts, libraries and houses of culture. The specific conditions of Koryak life have demanded special forms of cultural activity (especially in connection with the herders' brigades). This has been accomplished by the mobile Red Yarangas.

Wide political and cultural-educational work is being conducted among the Koryak women. Special departments have been set up at the Rayon Committees of the Communist Party to direct this work, and every collective farm has its own women's soviet. With the aid of the active leadership, the women's soviets organize classes for the semiliterate, read newspapers, draw women into active social life. The sanitary and other committees of the women's soviets help working Koryak women to keep the dwellings clean and hygienic, organize various circles (sanitary circles, cutting and sewing circles, etc.), advise women on various questions of culture and daily life, and help in the rearing of children.

During the years of socialist construction, a wide network of various medical institutions has developed on the territory of the okrug. In 1952 there were 5 hospitals and 14 health centers in the Karaginskiy Rayon alone. [943]

Religious ideas and the rituals connected with them are receding into the past. Dances and games have lost all their ceremonial significance, and are now merely gay diversions and sports. The traditional reindeer and dog races are now the closing feature of all Soviet holidays.

The Party organization of the okrug includes in its ranks many Koryaks. Among them are propagandists, newspaper editors, and workers of the Rayon Committees of the CPSU.

Many Koryaks have acquired technical and other skills formerly unknown among them, and have become motormen, radio operators, accountants, bookkeepers, zootechnicians, and workers in public health and education.

Most of the deputies of local soviets, people's judges and assessors are members of the local nationalities. The Koryaks have their elected representatives in the Kamchatskaya Oblast Soviet of Workers' Deputies and in the supreme government organ—the Supreme Soviet of the USSR.
